If people cannot separate fact from fiction as you note implies, it is not the fault of TV, rather the people themselves. I am not defendiong TV, I rarely watch it, and think it generally stinks.

A person cannot absolve himself of responsibility. If you want a certain type representative, its up to you to be sure you are voting for what you want. I know I can see duplicity, and can only hope other can also.

How can a vote truly count when the People now vote according to what is force fed them on the TV? Mud slinging and Madison Avenue techniques are hardly the civil discourse envisioned by the Founders. And with half the population too alienated to even vote we can see We the People have pretty much withdrawn our consent to be governed.

Violent revolution would be justified only as a last resort. In a country where the vote does count, I can't see the necessity of a violent alternative. We Americans don't get much involved in the process of govt. I suggest we should try involvement first. I can see no reason why that would not work.

voting,demostrating,and public hearings will deter government abuse of our rights.

a violent revolution will have to be rule out,we will never know how far the government will go in stopping a violent revolution.a peaceful revolution will be a greater chance to make by having city,local,and state council members to run the FEDERAL GOVERNMENT,until we have somebody else to take over.

in a state of emergency like this,city,local,and state governments will merge with the federal government until everything will come back to normal.it will take some time.

The Constitution merely creates the government.
The Declaration creates the Nation.
Which is the higher authority?

A close paraphrase of the Declaration: When ANY government becomes oppressive of the Right of the People to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, it is the Right of the People to alter or abolish that government and create a new one.

"Alter or abolish" means Revolution, and more to the point, VIOLENT Revolution. When those words were written (and endorsed under the threat of treason) our Revolution had been under way for one year, two months and fifteen days. The Patriots were willing to back up their principles with force of arms. After the Revolution was victorious a Bill of Rights was adopted enshrining the MEANS for Revolution, the Second Amendment.

The Right to Revolution is a NATURAL RIGHT and cannot be legislated away. The American People have generally been tolerant and open minded but today we tolerate a ruling class and government (the Washington/Wall Street Axis) that, with the aid of Madison Avenue techniques, steadily chips away at our rights and liberties. Why do they try so hard?

They are obviously hoping, Wishing, PRAYING that We the People will never draw a line in the sand and tell THEM:
"Cross it, you're DEAD!"

Where should we draw such a line?
