Looks like your gerbils caught this gem in the Times 1/19/97

Article about a pep talk Zedillo had with his unindicted co-conspirators quotes him:

"Sometimes you have to take off your shirts and show your chests so everyone can see our colors and know how pretty our T-shirt is."

I kid thee not.

Sounds like he's getting paid off in coke now, not dollars!

I bet you like the New York Times. Today's issue exposes the actions of the Mexican government in 1985 to give asylum to terrorists in El Salvador who had just murdered six Americans and seven others at an outdoor cafe: "Mexican Embassy Harbored Gunman, U.S. Officials Say." The leading gunman in the attack was then "spirited" out of San Salvador to rejoin his troops.

The ambassador, Frederico Urruchua, is now the Ambassador to the dictatorship of Peru. Criminal regimes stick together so its little wonder why the Clinton Administration was so eager to bail out the corrupt ruling class of Mexico.
