Bush missed the point!

Just three months after the Tiananmen massacre Bush sent (secretly) two top foreign policy advisors to Beijing to tell these jack-booted thugs that all is forgiven, lets go on with business as usual.

This is evidence of the quality of Bush's moral values.

If he thinks it is just fine for a government to shoot down peaceful demonstrators, then we can see how he can so easily approve of the murderous actions of the ATF and FBI. Mao talked of a million flowers blooming. Bush talked of a thousand points of light.

But the Weaver family and the Branch Davidians were points of life that were ruthlessly snuffed out by government agents.

Bush thinks this is just dandy and whoever speaks against these outrages is somehow un-American.

Bush probably thinks the Declaration of Independence is un-American because it tells of our God given RIGHT to Revolution:

When ANY government becomes oppressive of the Right of the People to Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness it is the Right of the People to alter or abolish that government, and create a new one that will respect those rights.

Alter or abolish means Revolution.

We the People now have ample grounds for Revolution. Even counting only Waco, more Americans have been killed by U.S. government aggression than were killed by British troops during the Boston Massacre.

Bush, of course, just wants to protect his wealthy and powerful friends and that's why he resigned from the NRA.

The People, not the government, make America. The government steals from the People and gives to the wealthy and powerful. The same as the previous government did until April 19, 1775.

History is repeating itself; King George is a goner!

I love it when you gun nuts try to use reason. Unfortunately you dont seem to have any. For instance, on the note before this and practically everywhere else on this bulletin board, the pro NRA pro gun people have constantly been talking about how Hitler "took away" everyone's gun rights in 1930's Germany. Now you are even equating the events that took place in Tiannamen Square circa 1989 with this topic. Of course neither moment in history has anything to do with your argument. For instance just as the events that took place in Europe just over 50 years ago were about racial hatred not gun control, your China analogy holds no water as well since while the students in Beijing were peacefully assembled and unarmed, your friends in Waco were heavily armed and fired first upon the ATF which in no way can be described as a "peaceful protest". While you guys are all entitled to your opinions, please stop revising history and using false analogies to prove your points.
