Lori-

It seems when law enforcement wants to frame someone all they have to do is pass along some of that confidential information you mentioned to some informant.

For example, they want to "get" someone for his political views. So they blackmail someone into becoming an informant against him (as they tried to do to Randy Weaver) and give him the secret information to make him seem bonafide, and no-one, especially defense lawyers are any the wiser. What can be done to keep law enforcement honest?

Rick,

I am sorry, but I really don't agree with your assumption that law enforcement is out to get people for their political views. I used to think that only left-wing liberals hated law enforcement...but I guess the hate has traveled far right....

Where there's SMOKE there's FIRE.

First the left discovers the truth about law enforcement:
COINTELPRO; Chicago Police Riot; Rodney King; Mark Fuhman.

Then the right: Waco; Ruby Ridge.

Lori, how can you NOT agree especially with the example I used, Randy Weaver? That's been in the news a lot lately. (Good thing for the FBI there still is a Fifth Amendment.)

What was Weaver targeted for if NOT his political beliefs?
