Wake up and smell the coffee yourself, Thomas.

The U.S. Government is responsible for massive violence against the American People. In 1993 alone more Americans were killed as a result of government aggression than were killed by the British at the Boston Massacre.

On numerous occasions (Waco, Ruby Ridge and Malibu,) the government entered situations where there was NO violence and brought death and destruction. They have this need to intimidate the People, to make us docile through fear so they can dominate us on behalf of Wall Street's New World Order.

Government troops murdered four kids at Kent State.

Historians and archivists now agree that it was NOT Spain that blew up the battleship Maine killing 260. The U.S. Government needed an excuse to start a war to seize Cuba, Puerto Rico and the Phillipines. Fifteen years later the government saddled us with the IRS and the Federal Reserve.

The government systematically butchered our Natives and according vo a CBS News/NY Times poll released in November 1993 fully 75% of the American People do not believe the government's "explanation" of the assassination of President Kennedy and 50% of us specifically name the CIA as being responsible.

If a part of the government can commit these atrocities, then it is reasonable, not paranoid, to believe a part of the government blew up a building.

The DEA, FBI, ATF, IRS and numerous other government sanctioned gun toting thugs are systematically terrorizing the American People so as to keep us docile to our coming fate.

We have the Second Amendment for a reason. It is our license to violent Revolution.

Thank you, thank you, for an excellent illustration of my point. Your note expressed it much better than anything I could have written. See you at the Putsch.
