The Republicans need a good woman to run for President, especially one who has never tried for office.

The current candidates, Sen. Ambition and Sen. Ambition II and Sen. Ambition III and Sen. Ambition IV and Gov. Ambition and ex-Gov. Ambition and Rep. Ambition are all too personally ambitious to be trustworthy enough to be handed control of the fate of the Nation.

They each, if elected, will serve only the special interests that manipulated them into power, while the vast majority of Americans continue to be un-represented because they have no political common sense to play with the big boys, to buy the big boys with the big bucks and to thus reap the big power (and the even bigger bucks that inevitably follow.)

The People have trusted the old politicians for way too long.

Its time to try something fresh and different, someone with true and uncynical middle-American and middle-class values. Someone who is smart and articulate, committed and idealistic, and possessing a loyalty to a purpose higher than crass politics.>>>

As the only woman in the race, a new face, fresh and conservative, Marilyn Quayle will energize the Republicans and gain the all important publicity that will propel her into the role of honest and principled politician whose only desire is the betterment of all Americans through the adherence to family values.

And best of all, (unlike Pete Wilson,) Marilyn would NEVER turn her back on the Statue of Liberty in order to face Wall Street. She understands the values and ideology that made America great: People, not money.
