75% of charitable contributions (mostly to religious organizations) aren't even listed as deductions on individual income tax returns. That's because most Americans sincerely want to do good and believe their church is the proper venue.

How can a poor person make a "commitment" when most commitments are now in Guatemala or Peru or Indonesia?

As an historical sub-footnote, then, the heart and soul of the welfare state is Jesus Christ, ("Do unto others as you would have them do unto you.")

The Big Question becomes "why are liberals so hostile to the idea of Christianity and Christians so hostile to the idea of Brotherly Love?"

I would think the liberals like the welfare state as a means to control a large number of People (and their votes) rather than as a means to improve lives, and that Christians have been lured into the Slough of Bigotry, AWAY from the Word of God, by something with a distinctly sulphuric odor.

If America were a Christian Nation we wouldn't have poverty. (And we wouldn't need Marx.)
