I would think that they should do an opening shot of Dole at the breakfast table with 'Liz serving him waffles from the waffle iron I sent him for Christmas, being that he allowed a bill that he intr[ ]vuced to be stifled in Congress only to be passed a year later and now being attacked by the man who is on his short list to be his Vice Presidential candidate.

The caption could read: DOLE LOVES WAFFLES.....

Maybe- but what have they got to offer??? They're not getting rid of Slick and therefore the choice is still simple. We associate the ad's with the "man" and it becomes no contest because we know he and they are a lie.

Good thing the cold war is over else all these things, especially the Colby affair, would be interpreted in a reddish light.

The Clinton camp may well use a tearful clip themselves come October. Picture this:

"Dole didn't cry for the victims of Agent Orange, but he cried for Nixon."

"Dole doesn't cry for the victims of corporate downsizing, but he cried for Nixon."

"Dole won't cry for the 6,000,000 citizens of Hong Kong about to lose their freedom to the communists, but he cried for Nixon."
Said against a backdrop of Dole bawling at Nixon's funeral.

Then the kicker: The unveiling of Mr. Senate, Bob Dole, as the "New Nixon." Then a shot of some vultures with a voiceover: "Don't let these fine feathered friends flock our Country once again."

He didn't miss the opportunity to make a big deal out of
it. The first few showings were like main events- complete with slow mo's and commentary. But as far as he's concerned now, it's "old news" and the only reason he still airs it is the promise he made saying he would "until every American has seen it." I don't know how he will determine when that has been accomplished, but I'm sure we can pretty much count on it being there for a while.

What I would like to see is that clip utilized in the campaign, say around Oct. and on through to the elections.
I think it speaks volumes of who is occupying our WH.

Saw the clip and will take Rush's word it was at the Brown funeral. Too bad Rush is such a knee-jerk supporter of Wall Street that he missed a great opportunity for polemic.

Rush is a very narrow person; He's always pleased as punch to preach to the already converted. He could have used the situation to chip away at Clinton's core voter, the working person, who responded to his '92 appeal against greed. (It was Wall Street that Clinton saw in the throes of greed.)

It was Wall Street that Brown served and died for. He was in the process of searching for yet more places to direct America's dwindling financial assets, to send America's wealth out of the country in order to aid foreign ruling classes and the Wall Street corporations in on the deal, draining this money away from America's working People.

Brown would be alive today had he brought those monied executives instead to his hometown, Harlem N.Y.C., and told them "This is where we need the investment, this is where we need the jobs, this is where we need the HOPE!" Brown wasn't representing poor Black Americans; he was aiding and abetting rich white Americans and foreigners. This is not the proper role of government. If we don't get the services we pay taxes for, the government has broken its promise to "provide for the general welfare."

The Black community has been long victimized. Their enemy is the white power structure, Black criminals and now turncoat Blacks who will sell-out the community for three piece suits and the chance to hob-nob with Wall Streeters.

Some folks will do anything for money and power and they make alliances of convenience with ambitious and unscrupulous professional politicians to achieve same, but this is typical behavior of BOTH Republicans and Democrats, so Rush won't make an issue of it. If Clinton slips up Rush will pounce, but only on the safe, easy target. When Wall Street is in the background Rush won't venture a shot fearful of hitting one of his own.

Yeah, It's a clip that Rush is showing daily. Find him in the listing and set your VCR. It's usually at the closing of the show. When he first introduced it he ran it several times at normal speed AND slow speed to emphasize the phoniness of this guy. Rush said he'd show it " 'til all America has seen it" so I 'spect it's still being aired.

Yeah... Hoover would have loved THIS guy.
Have you seen the video yet of him leaving Ron Browns funeral? He and a companion are walking along, whooping it up when Slick spots a cameraman outta the corner of his eye. Without changing gears goes into a sobbing routine-keeping a "sly eye" on the camera! Oh- and his companion never caught a clue, kept righ on laughing it up. It's a hoot.

The current crop of liberals has a Rockefeller pedigree. Y'know, Eastern Establishment, Wall Street connected "soft" lefties, like Clinton. (Didn't he get his "start" when David's little bro Winthroop was AK Gov?)

Anyhow, Wall Street gets to play both sides of the street now owning both Republicans and Clinton Democrats.

But the only blind fools among liberals in general are those that can't see Clinton has sold out the working People and is endeavoring to bury the Spirit of William Jennings Bryan. He's already done his best to resurrect J Edgar Hoover.

I remember hearing that related before in much the same fashion.

No wonder Slick was pist because he didn't get the extra wiretapping capabilities in his "anti-terrorism" package. He could really get some favors then. Anytime a gov't has a federal police force it is destined to become a tool against the citizen. Always has and always will. Federal Police have no business messing in civilian affairs- thats when we become a police state. Yet the liberals cry for even more police powers. What blind fools they are.

Hi George,

I know I've mentioned this before, elsewhere, but re TOWERS:

The most NON-reported aspect of that event was the criminal action of the FBI Director at the time, the wacko from Waco, William Sessions. About four months prior to the explosion William Sessions pulled DOZENS of agents off the cases they were working on in order to come to the aid of Sessions' personal friend, a rich society lady from Manhattan, who was being stalked by a maniac who kept calling her and once sent a condom to her daughter. These dozens of agents finally caught the maniac but we have to ask why were these dozens of agents pulled off their cases and directed to helping out this personal friend of the Director? Wasn't the NYPD good enough for this task?

We can only speculate what these dozens of agents would have uncovered had they not been removed from their regular cases to help Sessions' friend. Maybe one of them would have uncovered evidence or developed some information that could have prevented the WTC bombing, five deaths, hundreds of injuries and a billion dollars of damage. But the Director claimed special preference for his friend and not a single FBI agent protested, not a single Congress-person investigated, and the Manhattan DA did not prosecute this obvious influence peddling.

This is the kind of "justice" we get in America today. The wealthy and connected can phone up high ranking officials and get special treatment and a few months later lower Manhattan gets rocked and nobody seems to care.

Sessions was finally dumped six months later, in the midst of a paranoid breakdown, AFTER the deaths at Waco. He even had to be restrained from personally going to Waco to supervise the operation, and there are probably still fingernail scratches in the Hoover hallways from when he had to be dragged kicking and screaming from his office.

These are not the actions of a sane individual. But they ARE the actions of a criminal, corrupt and crazy professional government stooge who happens to be very well connected politically and VERY well protected by his friends (and unindicted co-conspirators?) in the "justice" system.

As a former Federal Judge from Waco, and the person with access to ALL the FBI files, we can guess how he got off the hook. Even the media wouldn't touch him.

How can anyone trust the FBI when the FBI lacks the courage and integrity to go after ALL wrong-doers? The FBI is highly proficient at reaping publicity from their successes, and they are equally adept at executing a coverup to help their own. Professional courtesy, its called. Business as usual in America c1996. Time for Revolution, 'cause it ain't gonna get better.
